

CAT I'm Cat, and the thing I know that nobody else does is that the story isn't really interesting unless they fail. I don't think these schmucks need any help to fail, which is good, but I'm not above pushing a little bit if it proves necessary. And I'm pretty sure Starchild wouldn't react well if they found out about Morgan screwing around. I'd rather Jackie didn't get caught in the wreckage, though. PUT THIS CARD NEXT TO THE AUDIENCE AND SPEAK YOUR TRUTH. 1	CHARLIE I'm Charlie, and I'm the reason the band exists. Look: you're nowhere without your fans, everybody knows that. Robin's amazingly talented and I love saying so, but if people like me hadn't recognized genius with the first album, the band wouldn't be having this wildly successful tour. I won a contest to be here, which proves I'm the most important fan there is -- sorry, Jackie, you're trash -- and I cannot wait until people start writing about me as the mysterious glamorous Muse I am. PUT THIS CARD NEXT TO THE MIXING BOARD AND SPEAK YOUR TRUTH. 2	DANA I'm Dana, and I get things done. I make sure the amps are on stage, I make sure the bus doesn't leave without someone, and I make sure Starchild has the right blend of powders and pills. I'm pretty sure Patty is getting angry about that last, but whatever, I'm a professional, I'm not going to get anyone killed. In the meantime, there are a few people tagging along on this tour who're willing to do a lot in exchange for access to the stars, so who am I to disappoint their pathetic little selves? PUT THIS CARD NEXT TO THE AUDIENCE AND SPEAK YOUR TRUTH. 3	JACKIE I'm Jackie, and this tour is the most fun I've had in ages. I owe Cat one for letting me tag along; it's so nice to hang out with my sibling again. And I'm learning so much: you would not believe how verbose Shannon gets when they're high out of their mind. Cat says I should keep the things I learn between us; I get that's the right thing career-wise but I keep thinking about how many followers I could pick up with just a few hints. PUT THIS CARD NEXT TO THE AUDIENCE AND SPEAK YOUR TRUTH. 4
JAY I'm Jay, and I wish I didn't owe Robin anything, but I do. I know I wouldn't be part of the band if I hadn't let Robin copy my test answers back in school. I'd be a session musician or a touring band member and that's just a pathetic life. So I keep pretending to be grateful, and in the meantime, getting with Morgan has been a nice unexpected benefit. I'd do almost anything to keep that a secret. PUT THIS CARD NEXT TO THE AUDIENCE AND SPEAK YOUR TRUTH. 5	MORGAN I'm Morgan, and I've made horrible mistakes. Nobody can know that this last tour is costing me the rest of the money I inherited from my family. I can't let it end this way -- one way or another, I need to figure out a way to stop spending money on this before the end of the tour. Even if it winds up meaning that people hate me, but it'd be better if my hands are clean. In the meantime I'll just keep distracting myself with my little affairs. PUT THIS CARD NEXT TO THE MIXING BOARD AND SPEAK YOUR TRUTH. 6	PATTY I'm Patty, and I'm managing a bunch of children. The band would never have succeeded without me, and they'd still be succeeding if they just listened to me. Shows what too much money will do to you, doesn't it? The immediate problem is the drugs, though. I like a good high as much as the next person, but that fucking roadie has basically opened a pharmacy backstage and it's not doing anyone any good. Especially Starchild, that arrogant idiot. PUT THIS CARD NEXT TO THE MIXING BOARD AND SPEAK YOUR TRUTH. 7	ROBIN I'm Robin, and I play a mean guitar. I also founded this band and I don't let anyone forget that. I suppose Rowan counts as a founder too, yes, but I'm the one standing front and center when we play. Who pays attention to the drummer? I deserve all the attention I get, or people like Charlie wouldn't keep telling me how marvelous I am. I like it when people know they owe me. PUT THIS CARD NEXT TO THE AUDIENCE AND SPEAK YOUR TRUTH. 8

ROBIN

I'm Rowan, and I'm too good for this. I founded this band, and I think I'm young enough to found another one if I wanted to. I'm damn sure good enough and I'm damn tired of Robin lording it over me. We came from the same womb but we don't have to be tied together all our lives. I do most of the hard concept part of writing our songs, even if I get help with the lyrics sometimes. I would do almost anything to be free from these idiots as long as nobody gets the idea I'm to blame. Reputation is everything.

SHANNON

I'm Shannon, and I'm a cliche, and I hate it. You know the drill, right? The bass player is the steady one, the bass player lays down the rhythm so everyone else can look good, the bass player is boring. The bass player writes all the songs and has to lie about it for the sake of making Rowan look good. God, I hate my contract. God, I love being on stage.

STARCHILD

I'm the Starchild, and I'm the star. Sure, Rowan and Robin founded the band and Rowan's the one who can write songs, but everyone comes to the shows to see me singing. I'm the only one who had the guts to really abandon my past life. There is nothing for me beyond the band. There is nothing for the band without me. I know my spouse Morgan understands that.

WHITNEY

I'm Whitney, and they pay me to make them look good. They're not bright enough to know that's why they pay me, but it is. I don't get high before I go on stage, I don't sleep with fans -- well, not underage ones -- and I play well. And I am so tired of seeing no-talent idiots like Jay getting royalties for albums he barely plays on just because he went to school with the almighty Robin. I wonder what it would take for Jay to get fired?
